Editorial Brevities

The groom at a wedding generally pays the parson four times the usual fee. The physician who officiates at the ushering into the world of the first born receives only the prescribed amount, and sometimes he fails even to receive that. Probably the groom is of the opinion the fee paid in the first instance is sufficient to compensate for all additional services. For decisive proof ask any newly elected father in Tonopah.

The recall of husbands should appeal to the majority of the female residents of Reno who are forced to remain in this state for six months before they can tear loose of their matrimonial encumbrances. Why not pass a law to that extent in place of the recall of public servants.

The secret of Senator Borah's success at the polls in Idaho is the fact that he has accomplished things for his state in the United States senate. Nevada can secure the same amount of recognition through the election of W. A. Massey, who has shown himself to be aggressive at all times.

Ray Baker, ex-warden of the state penitentiary, who has so proudly boasted of the fact that he was a republican, has been heard from again. He is now doing democratic politics in Reno. Ray always was consistently inconsistent.

If there was less politics in this world and the voters would cast their ballots for the candidates who possess qualifications for holding office, the old battleborn state of Nevada would be better off.

Peace, prosperity and protection was the slogan of President McKinley during his first campaign. Yet it has remained for President Taft to furnish all three promises to the American people.

George Springmeyer, the progressive candidate, has not been heard from for at least two weeks. No objection would be raised if he kept quiet for two weeks more.

With Roosevelt calling Wilson a liar, and Wilson and Bryan returning the compliment with interest, the political mud pile is rapidly being reduced in size.

Roosevelt appears proud of the title chief of the bull moose. Rather a dignified appellation for a presidential candidate to be toting about the country.

It this was the year 1930 and the socialist party had gained strength as they have in the last decade, it would not be hard to imagine what ricket Roosevelt would promote for his own interests.

The merchant who supports his own paper is the merchant who is deserving of the support of the people in his community.

A tattered coat may cover an honest heart, but a tattered pair of shoes does not always cover a clean pair of feet.

And in the meantime—Tonopah continues to send its regular weekly shipments of bullion to the mint.

Any man will favor woman's suffrage if his wife will get up early on a cold morning to build the fire.

The political graveyard will be a popular haven after November 5.

J. S. PERVIER NOW TRAVELING WITH AID CANE

SUSTAINED BRUISED KNEE CAP
WHEN THROWN FROM HIS DELIVERY WAGON

J. S. Pervier, who was thrown from his delivery wagon a week ago, is now able to be about the streets. The horse attached to the wagon in which Mr. Pervier was seated became frightened and in making a sudden turn overset the wagon, throwing Mr. Pervier to the ground.

The injury sustained consisted of badly injured knee cap. The injured knee is fast recovering its normal condition and Mr. Pervier is now able to travel about with the aid of a cane.

AN ODE TO THE COLONEL

A San Francisco business man who heard Colonel Roosevelt speak in Dreamland rink sent to A. M. Eaton of Woodland Impressions of the bull moose candidate as follows:

I am twice as great as Washington,
I am twice as great as Grant,
Because third terms they didn't get
They needn't think I can't.

I am twice as great as Jefferson
And Jackson combined.

I am twice as great as all the presidents, I find.

I am greater than my country, its customs and its laws,

Its poor constitutions, its presidential flaws.

I am twice as great as any man,
Above or 'neath the sod.

In fact, I am half inclined to think I am a greater man than God.

—Woodland Democrat

TEXAS HUNTER WAS NOT TAKING CHANCES

They are laughing yet, in Houston, over a story told by William Breen, an enthusiastic hunter—even for a Texan. Bill was strolling over Big Thicket one day with his Remington repeater over his shoulder, every now and then adding to his bag. Coming over the clump of a hill he met a fellow huntsman packing an old single shot rifle.

"What yo' all huntin'?" queried Bill.

"Might pot a deer," answered the other laconically.

"Seen any?" said Bill.

"Only three, so far," returned the stranger.

"Get a shot," persisted the Houstonite.

"Yas, they was two got pretty nigh—but I ain't got but one load for my gun and I wanta hunt all day," was the startling explanation that still amuses Bill and his friends.

HYPATIA READING CLUB DISCUSSES SOCIOLOGY

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. S. R. Moore entertained the Hypatia Reading club at its regular Thursday afternoon meeting.

Sociology will be the study for the coming month, and Ellen Key's great work on this subject will be the only text book. Her vision is so large that she is ranked among the half dozen writers known today as the "Futurists."
